

THE DAILY DEMOCRAT

THE DAILY DEMOCRAT.
THURSDAY, - - - MAY 8, 1886.

LE A Masonic temple is to be built in New York city which will surpass any edifice of the kind in the world. It is to be five stories high, feet front and 125 feet deep, and will contain ample accommodations for the grand lodge, and the subordinate lodge, chapters, encampments, and council. It will be built of brown sandstone, marble, and will cost, it is supposed, $400,000.

"Douglas University."

It has already been mentioned in the Democrat and State Senator Douglas, of Illinois, has donated to the Baptist of Chicago a beautiful grove of ten acres near that city, valued at $50,000, on which to erect a university, provided the common-people are aiding during the next fall, and they expend $25,000 per annum in its erection until completed. The Chicago Times states that the Rev. J. C. Burroughs has returned from Washington with the necessary papers, embracing this liberal donation, and adds:

"We understand that the university is to be under the charge of trustees or directors, the already been designated. Subscriptions have also been made to an amount exceeding $100,000 for the erection of the building and the endowment of the institution. It is to be called the 'Douglas University,' and Dr. Burroughs is to be its first President. It is to be, we learn, a college embracing all the branches of science, including law and medicine, and will compare, in all things, with the most celebrated universities of the country.

"We understand that there is no doubt that the foundation will be laid before next fall, and that the buildings will be erected with proper dispatch. The site is on the west side of Cottage Grove Avenue, opposite 'Oakenwald,' the residence of Judge Douglas."

This eloquent and truly National Democrat as recently visited Virginia, and there gave the citizens of the Old Dominion a taste of his genuine Democracy and noble, manly sentiments. The Richmond Enquirer has the following notice of his effort:

"Governor Willard held the meeting bound in the closest and most gratified attention. The boldness with which he denounced the fusion northern Know-Nothings and Black-Republicans in opposition to the National Democracy—the sound and conclusive arguments with which he defended the principles of the Kansas and Nebraska acts, as he does here as well as in Indiana—the scathing sarcasm with which he excoriated the miserable pretext and policy of Know-Nothingism—the burning eloquence with which he hurled defiance at the fanatical traitors who would violate the Constitution and destroy the tion—the strong light in which he placed the question of naturalization and the mutual obligations of the North and the South to protect the respective labor and property of each other—the soundness of his views and his stirring heart appeals to all the lovers of the Constitution and the Union, produced gratification and were received with enthusiastic applause. It was one of the best political speeches we have ever heard in Richmond, and the Democracy of Richmond rejoiced in its movement, thanks to its delivery.

address. We are not surprised that Indiana Democrats cherish such a man and orator. In the language of the Indiana Sentinel, referring to recent speech in that State, his manners and gestures are not such as you find prescribed in any of the books. He is natural to himself, and original. Perhaps some of fastidious taste might object to his ease and freedom of personal appearance, especially when he divests himself of his coat, but travels, and lays himself out for the occasion like some Grecian athlete in the Olympian arena. But under the magnetic power of his eloquence you will soon forget all about criticism on matters of taste. Let all our friends, wherever Willard goes during the campaign, turn out and hear him. They will had it will pay, if they have, as all western men have, an ear for eloquence.

"At the conclusion of Governor Willard's speech Governor Wise was loudly called for, and returned.

Thanks to the distinguished Indiana orator for his admirable and sound and patriotic sentiments, and for representing the National Democracy of the Northwest."

The Blessingames Killed by a Mob.

Last week we gave to our readers an account of the late awful tragedy on the Blanco. At that time it was expected that the case would under-judicial investigation, and that justice would be fairly dealt out. A very different event transpired. The facts, as they reached us last week, were that Capt. Callahan, Johnston, and Clument Hinds went to the house of W. Blessingame, to settle some personal difficulty with him, and that it resulted in the death of Capt. C. and W. Johnston and the severely wounding of Hinds.

ward of two companies of fourteen men each in this situation, and before any examination of the prisoners before a magistrate's Court had taken place, some fifty or one hundred men appeared before the guard, about twelve o'clock on Sunday night, and asked them if they would surrender the prisoners without resistance, if satisfied that there were enough present to overpower them in a fight. Our informant says that the guard was at first inclined to fight, but seeing the

The way to the prisoners was no sooner open than the mob rushed into the house, put out the lights, and dragged out by their heels the old man and his son—looked in each other's arms. According to the testimony of neighbors in the vicinity, there were probably some forty or fifty shot fired at old man Blessingmame. He was found dead some twenty yards from the house. The death of the two law-abiding citizens of this town

The verdict of the jury, upon the bodies of the deceased, was that they came to their death by being shot by a company of men unknown to the

This sad event will go abroad to misrepresent the character of our people. Our Western citizens are generally a law-abiding community, and opposed to "higher law" parties. We may well say that this event would never have transpired, could it have been foreseen by the leading citizens of the place, in time to have interfered. We hope never again to be called on to record another scene of the kind in this country.

LONGEST STEAMER IN THE WORLD.—The favorite steamer Isaac Newton, which a short time ago was taken up on the new railway at Long Island City, for the purpose of being lengthened and otherwise improved, is now very near completed. She has been cut into two parts abaft her machinery, and fifty-nine feet added to her length. Her entire length is now 404 feet, which exceeds that of any other vessel in the world, being fourteen feet longer than the Paris. (The Longest

(of course, accepted.) When completed, perhaps none will possess accommodations for passengers equal to hers. Beside the numerous berths in her cabins and saloons, there will be on her promenade and hurricane, or third deck, state rooms, well ventilated and beautifully arranged and ornamented, sufficient in number to accommodate a thousand persons. Her speed, it is anticipated, will also be considerably increased with her dimensions and carrying capacity. The whole work being performed under the supervision of Isaac Newton, Esq., in whose honor the vessel was named, and who, for many years past, has been the master spirit of the Hudson river steamboat line. The I. N. will probably take her place in the line at the close of the ensuing month.

EFFECTS OF UNEXPECTED LOSS.—A few days after the funeral were consumed in the burning of the churchyard of Keighley, the mortal remains of one of the most eccentric persons that ever lived, and who had been for many years in company with the deceased and remained there for a period of thirty years. He went by the cognomen of "Old Three Pence." In the neighborhood, but his real name was never known. He was a native of the West of England, not very far from Brighthelm, in the parish of Keighley. He was the son of a small farmer and a miller, and he was brought up at a place of education to steady work. When thirty years of age he took to his bed and the room, which he never left till his burial thence on the day of his funeral. He was a person of a very peculiar and singular disposition, and he was not at all susceptible to the influence of any particular view of certain views of any degree of certainty, but his principal reason seems to have been a matter of fact, and he was not at all susceptible to the influence of any particular view of certain views of any degree of certainty. This singular character, then a young and untutored, ardent lover, accompanied by a friend

At the time of his death, his window had never been opened for thirty-eight years. During the whole period of this self-imposed confinement, he never had any serious illness; the only cause of his disposition those connected with him can remember, being a slight loss of appetite, caused, apparently, by indigestion for two or three days.

...ne partially dumbfounded, so that he could not take his food in his accustomed manner. From this attack he seemed to rally, and not till the evening before his death were any apprehensions entertained that the attack would prove ultimately fatal.
